DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to the Amendment filed on March 07, 2005. Applicant's cooperation in amending the claims to overcome indefinite claim language is appreciated. Claims 1,8, 16, and 27; and claims 21-26 were cancelled.

Allowable Subject Matter

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: None of the cited prior art alone or in combination teaches or renders obvious the claimed combination of a shaft mountable member, a turbocharger having a shaft mountable member, and a method for circulating a lubricant between shaft member and an adjacent face of a second member to prevent of generating significant thrust loading on the second member including:

“ Regarding claim 1:

the first side defining a plurality of grooves extending radially between the bore and an outer perimeter of the first side, each of the grooves providing a fluid passage between the bore and the outer perimeter, each groove being defined by a sidewall that extends from the planar first side of the body portion at an angle directed more in a direction perpendicular to the first side than a direction parallel to the first side.

Regarding claim 8:

Including all the limitation of claim 1 and further including:

the compressor and turbine being axially restrained to the housing separately from the bearing.

Art Unit: 3748

Regarding claim 16:

each of the shoulder surface grooves providing a radial fluid passage between the shoulder surface and the relatively rotatable member such that fluid is communicated through the grooves without generating significant thrust loading for axially restraining the shaft and the relatively rotatable member between the shoulder surface and the relatively rotatable member.

Regarding claims 27 and 31:

one or more radial holes extending from the radially outer surface of the body portion to the bore.
